It was said such a course would be in keeping with this Convention. If any gentleman has made up his mind not to do so declare himself.

fully concurred with Mr. Dean, believe in having persons nominated for the purpose of gratifying vanity. He protested against such a move would be placing candidates who wanted to run, and who had made offices, in a false position. He asserted that the Convention had been with great care that they had obtained the consent of the people to become candidates, and it was wrong to nominate others simply for the sake of nominating.

... remarks about having had a difficult time to stand. He did not know men were who had made such a fuss. He supposed this Convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate that there had been no previous discussion about candidates. He further discussion the following was adopted :

on, being the first candidate named, upon to speak. He said he did not dicted upon them a speech. He was surprised, and really did not know why. It was known to most of them that never been an active politician, but also known that he had been a forward politician, and always on one of the present was an important crisis in the history of the country, and it was in the most important that good and honest men should be sent to the Legislature. It was known to most of the gentlemen present that he was so happy as to receive a call from the President, and he could only say he would do to perform his duty and be worthy confidence. If they decided upon this, he could only say whoever it was to receive his hearty support. The question of importance before the committee was one of finance. The taxes of the county would necessarily be much increased. There had been six members of Parliament for this County; there would be only three. There would be three governors instead of one, and the cost of the Government would be much increased under the old system. Still, he Confederation would be a blessing to the country, and he was proud that the new Dominion was Canada. He asked Dr. Holden what his views were with respect to Coalition. Dr. Holden said there were times when a Coalition was necessary, but under ordinary circumstances they were not an advantage to the country. As a rule Coalitions were bad. He asked: "What are your views respecting a Coalition? Do you think Hon. Mr. McDougall has acted properly?" Dr. Holden said: "I have hardly had time to give proper consideration. My opinion is that the Coalition has had its day. The Coalition Government having failed, there is no use for the Coalition.—Would you support the proposition?

He would make no promise. If he were with a nomination he should consult with his friends. He lay down a platform at present, and was in such a chaotic state, that he could not say whether he had been

1907 BUILDING COMMISSION HAS BEEN

Mr. Henderson wanted the Convention to stand that they were candidates for their seats. He had been nominated for both, and if he did not get the nomination in the House of Commons he would go to a by-election. He would not ask the members for their votes. Referring to the appeal, he said that he would appeal to every man who knew they did not know he had always been a Conservative. He would not say anything about Coalition and against Coalition. It was evident they did not know what he was talking about. Was there not a coalition of parties in the Liberal Party? A member of Parliament? Was there not a coalition of parties when Brown opposed Waller? He supported Brown and told them by party lines. He said that at I am not an old Reformer? Am I and I would be thrown overboard? Did we

[illegible]

By R. S. Gilbert, the next candidate, said he wanted to see leading men of both parties in the room. He said he would like the best men come by their due, and it might work something in this case. How could he not aspire to a position in Parliament with respect to the position of parties, he said. He was not a member of the Conservative Party at Wallbridge's election, that Conservative Party was not to the Reformers. It was his opinion that Reformers came over to the Conservatives, the one who knew him knew that his party was not a member of the Conservative Party, but to remain so. It was well enough to support a Coalition Government, but the government laid down a policy. He would not support a Coalition Government, but he would to choose a member for the House of Commons, they would allow Sidney to see the way for the Local Legislature.

House of Commons declined to nominate him, but he hoped, whoever they were, both would be Reformers. Mr. C. Graham was next called upon. He read from some remarks made by previous speakers, and then said that he had a right to be here. But he considered the term "Liberal" was sufficiently comprehensive to embrace himself and all other Liberal Conservatives. It might be considered a little broad, but he would use Conservative milk, but he would say this, that the views expressed by some Reformers here to him were the views of the Reform party, he thought he was a Conservative. He then went on to say that he had little to do with the money and what was done there, and he thought the Sydney delegation represented the intelligence and wealth of the township. It was to represent them in the Legislature. He was selected he could assure them he would not betray them. Referring to Dr. Hope asked upon himself and Mr. Brown, he said Dr. Hope wrote a letter to Mr. Brown, inviting him to come to the State with Mr. Brown and such men as John S. Hoffman, Dr. W. W. Varners, W. H. Austin and others, he had heard that they were an intruder. The speaker then read an extract from the New York Herald saying "we are on occasion and party government, which we are not." Mr. Dean asked Mr. Graham if he would not present the present Government. Mr. Graham would support the present Government until the mischief of the Government was cured. Dr. Hope asked Mr. Graham if he had not himself from the old Conservative party.

ence of men as Hon. Robt. Ressented Howell, Thos. Wills and others a Reform Convention, and wanted to be elected, but he failed himself to win. He wanted an answer yes or no.
Mr. Graham said he would know the iron just as he thought proper. When it was his political antecedents you know well, and he would not touch on them in all matters; but in times of Coalition ourselves voting for all shades of politics have voted for Jas. Brown, for Dr. Hoild Silla Flint, and for Wallbridge.
Dr. Hope, and Mr. Graham believed in themselves from the Conservative party.
Mr. Graham considered himself a mac-liberal man than Dr. Hope. I might hope did he isolate himself from the party when he went over to the Wall-bridge.

...having been urged by a large number of friends to stand he would go to a vote. He decided to do his utmost to promote the interests of the black community. Henderson said if he failed to receive the nomination for the House of Commons, he was a candidate for the Local authority.

Mr. Austin did not feel warranted in drawing his name, though he had great dislike to being placed in such a position. He contended that Sidney and Trenton were representing more than half the constituency. He was a candidate, and he hoped Bellville would be a candidate. He said he would allow Sidney and Trenton to unite with one for the Local Legislature. The great question which seemed to be before this Com-

one of Coalition. His opinion upon this question was similar to that expressed by the other members of the Coalition. He believed the country when Coalitions were necessary, could not be carried on by party Government, but when we say that Coalitions are necessary, we argue that the Government is in a position and condition where to-day, it is only in extreme cases Coalitions are justifiable, and such a situation, now appears in the House of Commons. The question of the Government of Confederation has been carried out by the Government of the United Kingdom in the Maritime Provinces; and it is only by a Union Government that the new machine properly be set in motion. We would like ourselves to go to the House of Commons and to tell the country that we are well in the way you want Dr. Haldane to do.

overturn in the House of Commons, and proposed to Coalition in the Local Legislation, where the coalescing of parties was announced, and he hoped that would represent the best chance of obtaining a certain number of speakers, and decided being a candidate. He repeated the discriminations which had been indulged in by parties here to-day. He saw a good need for a Liberal Conservative Friends' presentation to the House of Commons, and he thought Mr. Jos. C. Foster—'Don't think you are so much or you would not abuse us as you are.' Mr. Roblin went on to speak of the re-formation of parties, and at this stage of the proceedings several of the delegates from

The following delegates from Sidney attended the convention:

Dr. Dray followed, also declining the nomination. He was asked by Mr. H. C. Brown to be the Candidate for the Local Legislature.

A motion was then made appointing Messrs. J. W. Brown, Chairman, Secretary and Dr. Dray, Scrutineer.

Considerable confusion took place prior to the election. The words "Liberal and Reformer" were circulated freely, and Dr. Hope took up his hat to show he had got nearly to the door, when he prevailed upon Mr. Brown to allow him to go back to the platform. The words "Liberal and Reformer" were again taken up at the back part of the hall, refusing to take anything further part in the proceedings.

The first ballot which was taken showed the following result: Holden 21; Jas. Brown 8; and Dr. Hope 8.

The following delegates from Sidney did not vote: Messrs. B. Graham, A. Finkle, W. J. ...

Dr. Grass, R. Rose, R. Farley, John A. Gilman, H. P. Fenn, A. C. Thompson, J. C. Brown, and C. H. Bird.

The second ballot was taken for Holden Brown, and resulted in Holden obtaining Brown 9.

The third ballot was taken for Holden Brown, and resulted for Holden 30, Bird 9.

Dr. Holden's nomination was on motion of Dr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Henderson, unanimous.

The ballot for Candidates for the Local trust took place.

FIRST BALLOT.—Graham, 3; Farley, 1; Henderson, 3; Austin, 10.

SECOND BALLOT.—Farley, 18; Henderson, 18; Austin, 18.

THIRD BALLOT.—Farley, 30; Austin, 18; Bird, 18.

Mr. Farley's nomination was then on motion of Dr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Henderson, unanimous.

Gold News.

A correspondent writing from Banoco under date June 26, says: "I was just a sample by D. B. Johnson, of the 'Crucible Co.', of rock taken from their mine at a depth of 30 feet, containing a beautiful nugget of gold. This age-old mine, Johnson told me was but one of a hundred up in the mine by himself and others to the genuineness of this discovery."

The writer encloses a sample of the rock in which the gold is found, which is seen at this office,
